Task areas to be tested are as follows: directing and organizing staff and work; scheduling and record keeping, compliance, maintenance and cleaning; collaborating and teamwork; and technical expertise.

The test may include questions on building and building systems (such as heating, ventilation, mechanical, plumbing, electrical, etc.); building maintenance and other general repairs (such as physical repairs to buildings and grounds, including painting, carpentry, masonry, janitorial work, and other trades); court case protocol; work order priority; move-out and inspection procedure; public and employee safety; New York City Housing Authority rules, regulations, policies, and procedures; standards of proper employee ethical conduct, including the provisions of Mayor's Executive Order No. 16 of 1978 as amended; and other related areas.

The test may also include questions requiring the use of any of the following abilities:

Planning & Organizing: establishing a method of execution to accomplish a specific goal over an extended period of time; determining appropriate assignments and allocations of resources. Example: An Assistant Resident Buildings Superintendent may use this ability when organizing work orders on move-outs and knowing the appropriate order in which the repairs need to take place so the turnover of the apartment is completed within the required time period.

Management of Material Resources: obtaining and seeing to the appropriate use of equipment, facilities and materials needed to do certain work; managing the things needed for work to be accomplished. Example: An Assistant Resident Buildings Superintendent may use this ability when taking inventory and verifying the logs for the store/stock room and knowing to order a certain number of supplies for an upcoming work order.

Management of Personnel Resources: motivating, developing and directing people as they work, identifying the best people for the job; managing employees needed to accomplish tasks. Example: An Assistant Resident Buildings Superintendent may use this ability when evaluating staff working on a work order or move-out, or ensuring sufficient staff is maintaining grounds in accordance with standards outlined in policy and safety procedures.

Monitoring: monitoring/assessing performance of oneself, other individuals or organizations to make improvements or take corrective action; overseeing the quality of performance. Example: An Assistant Resident Buildings Superintendent may use this ability when evaluating staffs' work, evaluating a work order or move-out, or ensuring the work quality of staff as they maintain the grounds in accordance with standards outlined in policy and safety procedures.

Time Management: managing one's own time and the time of others in order to promote effective use of work hours. Example: An Assistant Resident Buildings Superintendent may use this ability when scheduling vendors and contractors to complete a specific job, such as preparing an apartment for a resident after a fire emergency situation.

Adaptability/Flexibility: responding to change (positive or negative) in a constructive manner and adapting approach as needed to the situation. Example: An Assistant Resident Buildings Superintendent may use this ability when handling several high-priority work orders at once and must assign the necessary staff to each problem.
