This examination is also open to employees who were appointed to an eligible title pursuant to New York State Civil Service Law, section 55-a, and who meet all other eligibility requirements.

If you do not know if you are eligible, check with your agency's personnel office. You may be given the test before we verify your eligibility. ELIGIBILITY TO BE PROMOTED:

Time served prior to a break in service of more than one year will not be credited toward meeting these requirements. Employees who have passed probation in any eligible title, but who, at the time of promotion, are serving in another eligible title as specified above, but who have not passed probation for that title, are nevertheless eligible for promotion.

REQUIREMENT(S) TO BE PROMOTED:

If you were educated outside the United States, you must have your foreign education evaluated at your own expense to determine its equivalence to education obtained in the United States. You will receive instructions from the Police Department during the pre-employment screening process regarding the approved evaluation services that you may use for foreign education.

Age Requirement: You must be at least 17½ years of age by the date you take the multiple-choice test to be permitted to take this examination. You must have attained age 21 to be promoted to Police Officer. If you are too young for promotion on the date the eligible list is terminated, you will have no further opportunity for promotion from the list. Thus, you must not have reached your 35th birthday by June 5, 2024 to be promoted to Police Officer.

Exception to Age Requirements: If you were engaged in military duty as defined in Section 243 of the New York Military Law, you may deduct from your actual age the length of time spent in such military duty, provided the total deduction for military duty does not exceed seven years.

You will be examined to determine whether you can perform the essential functions of the position of Police Officer. Additionally, you will be expected to continue to perform the essential functions of a Police Officer throughout your career, and may, therefore, be medically and psychologically tested periodically throughout your career. Where appropriate, a reasonable accommodation will be provided for a person with a disability to enable him or her to take these medical and psychological examinations, and/or to perform the essential functions of the job.

Physical Testing: Physical standards have been established for the position of Police Officer. You will be required to pass a qualifying physical test and may be required to undergo periodic physical testing throughout your career.

Drug Testing: You must pass a drug screening prior to promotion as part of a pre-promotion screening process, and you will be subject to drug testing during Police Academy Training and as part of the medical examination at the end of probation. You may again be drug tested on a random basis after your probationary period is completed or as a prerequisite for assignment or promotion. Any member of the NYC Police Department found in possession of or using illegal drugs, or who fails, refuses, or attempts to evade a drug test, will be terminated. The NYC Police Department has a strict zero tolerance policy concerning illegal drug use.

Driver License Requirement: By the time of promotion, you must possess a motor vehicle driver license valid in the State of New York. Application for Examination: Follow the online instructions, including those relating to the payment of fee and, if applicable, those found in the Special Circumstances Guide.

THE TEST:

The multiple-choice test will be given at a computer terminal. Your score on this test will determine your place on an eligible list. A score of at least 70% is required to pass this test.

The test may include questions on the standards of proper employee ethical conduct, including the provisions of Mayor's Executive Order No. 16 of 1978 as amended; and other related areas.

The test may also include questions requiring the use of any of the following abilities:

Deductive Reasoning: applying general rules to specific problems and coming up with logical answers. It involves deciding if an answer makes sense. Example: This ability may be used by a Police Officer when determining the appropriate dispatch code based on the situation.

Inductive Reasoning: combining separate pieces of information, or specific answers to problems, to form general rules or conclusions. It involves the ability to think of possible reasons for why things go together. Example: This ability may be used by a Police Officer when investigating specific offenses.

Information Ordering: following correctly a rule or set of rules or actions in a certain order. The rule or set of rules used must be given. The things or actions to be put in order can include numbers, letters, words, pictures, procedures, sentences, and mathematical or logical operations. Example: This ability may be used by a Police Officer when storing found, seized, or recovered property.

Memorization: remembering information such as words, numbers, pictures, and procedures. Pieces of information can be remembered by themselves or with other pieces of information. Example: This ability may be used by a Police Officer when searching for individuals who are wanted for questioning after being presented with an image and description of the individual.

Problem Sensitivity: being able to tell when something is wrong or is likely to go wrong. It includes being able to identify the whole problem as well as elements of the problem. Example: This ability may be used by a Police Officer when apprehending crime suspects or working with crime victims.

Visualization: imagining how something would look when it is moved around or when its parts are moved or rearranged. It requires the forming of mental images of how patterns or objects would look after certain changes, such as unfolding or rotation. One has to predict how an object, set of objects, or pattern will appear after the changes have been carried out. Example: This ability may be used by a Police Officer while searching for individuals who are wanted for arrest or questioning when attempting to identify such individuals who are believed to have changed their appearance.

Written Comprehension: understanding written sentences and paragraphs. Example: This ability may be used by a Police Officer when reviewing documents, reading traffic signs, issuing traffic violations, etc.
